NARRATIVE PROFILE

History

The Lake Township region once consisted of sands, swamps, and woodlands. Explorers made their way to the area through Quebec by means of the Great Lakes and their adjoining rivers. Permanent settlers appeared on the scene 150 years after the French explorations.

Soon a small community called "Laketon" began to form just north and east of the present city of Bridgman. In 1846, the area that would be known as Lake Township was separated from Oronoko Township. Lake Township was later divided into Lake and Baroda Township, resulting in a final size of only about 23 square miles. The first election was held at the home of Benjamin Lemon, an early pioneer, with a total of 18 votes cast.

Easy access to Lake Michigan and the abundance of wood made lumbering the first commercial interest in the Township. By 1870, several sawmills were in operation. A much-needed railroad and pier were built, which further stimulated the economic growth of the area. A lagging economy eventually forced the sawmills out of operation, and the railroad became a mere reminder of the "good ole times." After 1890, the economy rebounded. Immigrants from Russia and Germany poured into the area. In ten years, the population doubled, as did the price of land. Fortunately, much of the population increase was absorbed in the local fruit and nursery industries.

In 1968, construction started on the Donald C. Cook Nuclear Plant. Today, thanks to the Cook Plant, Lake Township is one of the most prosperous communities in Berrien County. It has many miles of beautiful shoreline, several parks, wooded dunes and fertile farmland. It is truly a beautiful place to live.

Observations

Warren Dunes State Park is a popular attraction in the area. The popularity of the Township has increased the demand for residential lots, so room for growth is limited. Once established in the Township, it is a wonderful place to live.

Community Vision

To maintain the status quo of an affluent, friendly and peaceful community.

Agenda of the Community Strategic Plan

No current Community Strategic Plan.
