NARRATIVE PROFILE

History

St. Joseph's history began almost 100 years before the American Revolution. In 1679 the explorer LaSalle and his 14 men cleared a piece of land and constructed a fort on the bluff above the St. Joseph River. LaSalle's stay was not long, and the area remained unsettled until 1785 when William Burnett established a trading post and became the first permanent settler.

The Carey Mission Treaty of 1828 opened the area and St. Joseph began to grow in earnest. The settlement grew into a village, which was originally called Newberryport in honor of a prominent businessman. The village grew so rapidly that it was incorporated on March 7, 1834 and was renamed St. Joseph. In 1891 the village officially became the City of St. Joseph. The original name "St. Joseph" was first given to the mission which was established at the mouth of the river about 1700, and designated in the records of the Catholic church as "The Mission of St. Joseph of Lake Michigan." St. Joseph was the patron saint of Canada, or New France, from where Jesuit priests came to convert the Indians. At its first village meeting, $400 was set for operating funds and a tax was levied. Struggling villagers, unable to pay the tax, dug stumps from village streets at $.25 per stump in lieu of payment to the village tax collector. The shrewd quickly pulled the small stumps to pay their taxes, while those who were not as ambitious paid a heavier physical toll because they were left with the large, difficult-to-pull stumps.

The City became the permanent seat of County government in 1894. By the 1890's tourists had discovered St. Joseph. Hotels were erected and the Silver Beach Amusement Park was opened not long after. This park remained a popular tourist attraction until the late 1960's. Although no longer an amusement park, Silver Beach (now a county park undergoing extensive revitalization) is once more a tourist attraction.

Industry also prospered in the City. Steamers, freighters, and pleasure boats found the St. Joseph River to be an ideal Lake Michigan port that continues to the present day.

The City of St. Joseph prospered by encouraging a balanced mixture of industry, commercial, and residential development. This philosophy has not changed and the City continues to offer a high quality of life to all.

Ben King, a well-known nineteenth-century poet, wrote the following poem honoring idyllic St. Joseph....

"Where the thistle-down pauses in search of the rose
And the myrtle and woodvine and wild ivy grows;
Where the catbird pipes up and it sounds most divine
Off there in the branches of some lonely pine;
How oft on its banks I have sunk in a dream,
Where the willows bent over me kissing the stream,
My boat with its nose sort of resting on shore,
While the cat-tails stood guarding a runaway oar;

It appeared like to me, that they sort of had some
Way of knowing that I would soon get overcome,
With the meadow lark singing just over the spot
I didn't care whether I floated or not -
Just resting out there for an hour or so
On the banks of the tranquil old River St. Joe."

Observations

St. Joseph is well known for its beautiful location on Lake Michigan, its abundance of beaches and parks, its affluent community, and high-quality public schools. The public services are among the best in the county with excellent police and fire departments, water and sewer lines extended throughout, and 14 beautifully maintained recreational areas. Due to the presence of large employers such as LECO Corporation, Lakeland Regional Health Systems, Whirlpool Corporation and the Berrien County Courthouse, the population of St. Joseph nearly triples on the average workday. The City encourages well-balanced industry within its boundaries, and the formal approval of river barge traffic into its ports is expected to add further incentives for the area. The ideal location of St. Joseph has attracted many second-home buyers, mainly from the Chicago area. The quality of housing units and residential neighborhoods enhance the City's attractive image. The blending of all these characteristics makes the City of St. Joseph one of the most sought-after places in the county in which to live and raise a family.

Community Vision Statement

"The City of St. Joseph is a stable community that reflects a quality living environment and sense of pride among its residents. It is a fiscally responsible city, with sound infrastructure and diverse commerce and industry, with tourism and recreation oriented to its waterfront resources. The City is committed to ensuring a superior and affordable education system, modern medical facilities, and safe and secure residential neighborhoods. The area's heritage, reflected in its historical buildings, complements the rich and diversified cultural opportunities available to residents and visitors alike. All of these attributes, in conjunction with the City's attractive physical setting, make St. Joseph enticing to people of all ages. The City will target the optimum number of residents that will allow its public and institutional resources to function most efficiently."

Agenda of the Community Strategic Plan

In 1992, the City Commission authorized the Planning Commission to undertake an update of the City's 1976 Master Plan. The City Commission contracted with a consulting agency to facilitate this program. The final product, a Strategic Plan, was submitted in January 1993.
